- present their ideas, findings and conclusions in a range of communication forms using discipline-specific terms and appropriate conventions.

Part A: Researching options and analysing data

The Limes State School community is holding a fundraising event to generate funds for the school to use to purchase wanted items.

As a Year 5 student attending Limes State School, you will make decisions about the best product to sell at the fundraising event.

Use Source 1 to help answer these questions.

The graphs provide information about factors that may influence consumers' choices at the school fundraising event.

1. Identify two factors from the graphs that could influence consumer choices at the fundraising event.

2. Identify two other factors that could influence consumer choices at the fundraising event.

The Year 5 class at Limes State School has identified the following products as options to sell at the fundraising event; however, they do not have enough resources to sell them all.

hot chocolate
and coffee stall

iceblock stall

pancake stall

3. What decisions will the Year 5 class have to make about the product options?

Think about strategies that could be used to help you make a decision about what product to sell at the fundraising event.

4. Identify two strategies that could help you to make a decision.
5. Explain how each strategy would help.

Strategy:	Make a list of needs and wants
Example: A list of needs and wants can help you prioritise your items to determine importance.
